From the Pastors Desk...

Wow! I turned on my computer as soon as I got to the church this morning. Immediately I downloaded all my new emails and started working my way through them. I stopped immediately when I saw the title of the weekly blog posted by my Alumni Mater – Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary. "I know that phrase," I said. "I preached that Mary Oliver poem one Easter Sunday morning about 3 years ago. Members of the congregation have quoted those words to me time and again since I preached it."

*I became curious. I wonder what Angela Morris, the guest writer of the Thinking Out Loud blog, did with that phrase from Mary Oliver's poem. She went in a very different direction than I did when I preached the resurrection that Sunday morning. It's good. Of course, I had to look up the term Luddite but that's okay. See what you think, but most of all Pay Attention. Be Astonished. Tell About it.

Pay Attention. Be Astonished. Tell About it.

"Pay Attention. Be Astonished. Tell About it." [1] These were the opening words at a recent worship service I attended at the annual American Theological Library Association conference in Charlotte, N.C. Leighton Ford used this excerpt from a Mary Oliver poem to preach a thought-provoking sermon entitled "God Is Paying Attention - Are We?"

What about it, how often do we really pay attention, to anything? When was the last time you were truly astonished? If we are honest, in today's hyper-connected world of Twitter, Facebook, and Instagram, we tell about everything. These instant messaging tools encourage us to tell all, with no requirement for "paying attention and/or astonishment."

Relax, this isn't a Luddite diatribe against technology. After all, I've written a blog entry on a laptop and these words are now posted on the Internet. Rather it is an invitation to consider how often we truly pay attention, why we might want to, and what is gained by the practice.

There are many impediments to paying attention in our world that glorifies the art of multi-tasking and offers so many tools for doing it. Our smart phones allow us to not only make and receive calls, but to also check e-mail, search the Internet, listen to music, and be instantly updated - all options that require our attention. They encourage us to view the world through their screen instead of directly. What do we miss by viewing that four inch surface when we walk from one place to another; when we sit amid a group of people and choose to engage with the virtual and not the breathing, thinking, feeling, living child of God sitting next to us?

Fairgreen Publication Deadlines:

Newsletter—The 3rd Sunday of each month for next month's newsletter.

Two years ago, Sean Hayden, a fellow in Vanderbilt's Theology and Practice Program, taught a seminar at Louisville Seminary on Wendell Berry - a rather famous Luddite. The course required that students take two technology sabbaticals, one of three days, the second a full week. During this sabbatical, we were asked to "briefly give up our addiction to technology. No Internet or computers (other than for school use, and then only if absolutely necessary), no TV, and no cell phones or similar devices. The primary goal of the exercise was for us to learn a simple lesson about attention - and how it gets ruined." [2]

Technology for many of the twelve students in the seminar was a way of life. I've likened their use of technology to being as essential to them as breathing is. Their feedback after surviving those days unplugged was very interesting. The biggest surprise? The realization of how much time they spend online. The realization that, "yes, technology does save one time with many tasks, but it often robs one of time by luring one to check out another web page, see what our friends are up to on Facebook, answer the latest e-mail that just came through, or check the latest gossip about our favorite celebrity."

What about it? Is technology a tool that you control, or is it perhaps controlling you? I think too many forget that there is an off button. What if, instead of having everything on all the time, you only powered up when you needed to check on something or perform a task? I often remind my completely wired twenty-three-year-old daughter that she has the power, she only has to exercise it.

Think about it - what if you unplug and really pay attention to the person in front of you, the task at hand, or the ever changing vista of the natural world. I predict that you will be astonished and that you won't be able to keep from telling about it. It's what happened at a worship service I attended in North Carolina in June.

BACK TO (SUNDAY) SCHOOL! By Dr. Mike Roadruck

As school bells ring and students of all ages head back to the classroom Fairgreen also begins the Fall Semester. Beginning September 8 Agnes McKinstry and Chris Roebuck will lead a series of discussions on "How we got the Bible." The sessions will be held after church in the lounge on four Sundays in September: 9/8, 15, 22, 29. Beginning in October Anna Jones will lead three sessions on the Creeds/Confessions of the church. Again these sessions are in the lounge following church. 10/6,13,20. Finally in November Bill Henning will lead four sessions on "How we got all these denominations." Beginning on October 27 and continuing on November 3, 10, 17.

Additionally, we are also beginning "Odd Sundays" on September 15 at 9:09 am before church in the Library. The class will continue meeting on the odd Sundays in September, October and November. During this time various leaders from the congregation will facilitate discussion on the lectionary texts for the day.

Renewing of the mind is not just for youngsters. Attending any of these opportunities will require a change in your routine. Brain research shows that changes in your routine can improve your mental acuity and promote development of neural pathways. Do your brain and your spirit a favor. Grab a cup of coffee or other beverage and a cookie or other snack then feed your brain and grow your spirit by attending these opportunities for intentional spiritual development.

FIVE TIPS TO ELDER CAREGIVING

It can happen without warning. Your father suddenly collapses from a stroke, and in that moment your lives are forever changed. He emerges from his recovery unable to think or speak clearly, pay the bills, or be trusted to use the stove safely. Once the unquestioned authority on any number of subjects, he can no longer be responsible for himself ...

Or the progression may be more gradual, as it is with someone living with Parkinson's disease. Your once fiercely independent mother begins to lose her balance, needs help walking, and can no longer shop for groceries or complete other day-to-day tasks on her own. Unable to care for herself, she becomes withdrawn and depressed.

Regardless of how or when it happens, being faced with the responsibilities of elder caregiving can be overwhelming. Although it may feel as though things are spinning out of control, there are steps you can take to improve the situation and how you are feeling. Here are five tips<sup>1</sup> that can help you help yourself if you are the primary caregiver for an elderly parent or other loved one:

- Get in Touch with Your Feelings. At some point, you are likely to feel helpless, angry, or resentful, and then guilty for having these feelings. Or you may be feeling a tremendous sense of loss. It's important not to keep your feelings bottled up inside. Talk with friends or family about these feelings — it will help!
- Make Time for Yourself. Being the primary caregiver to an elderly person can isolate you. To maintain your emotional balance, it's important to do something for yourself. Arrange for a friend or family member to help out, and use your free time to do something relaxing or to pursue outside interests.
- Use Support Services. Investigate programs in your community that can help with caregiving, or get advice through your Employee Assistance Program (EAP), detailed below. Get referrals to social service agencies, home health agencies, and transportation systems. Some communities have day care programs for the elderly or those with specific needs.
- Join with Other Caregivers. Ask your doctor, community hospital, or public health department for referrals to support groups available to people providing eldercare, and consider joining in. Sharing your experiences with another caregiver can help you both.
- Learn How To Communicate with Your Loved One. Cognitive impairments caused by a stroke, dementia, or other neurological conditions can alter a person's ability to communicate. Learn all you can about the person's condition from a healthcare provider, and find out how you can connect with your loved one, given his or her impairment.

If these tips are not enough, you may want to talk with a professional, your Pastor or a Spiritual Director. Many of us do have Health Plans which will cover professional services in a situation like this.

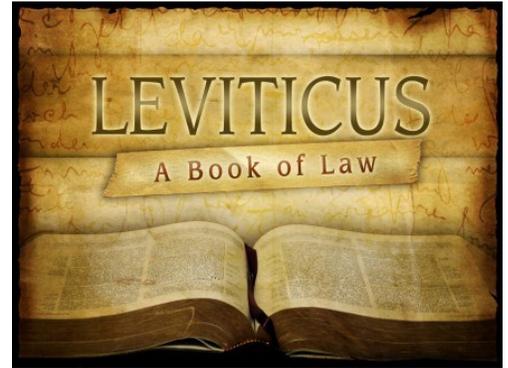

Whatever support you seek, the important thing is to remember to take care of yourself during this difficult time.

"IT REALLY IS IN LEVITICUS By Dr. Mike Roadruck

"Leviticus! How boring. I hated reading that book. It doesn't make any sense and has nothing to do with today." That was one of my friend's reaction when I told him about the Bible study we are doing at 3:30 on Wednesday afternoons here at Fairgreen. Well, that is not the reaction the half dozen regular participants would give. We often get into animated discussions over the text. At this writing we have just finished chapter 18 – Sexual Behavior. Wow! Did that ever get us going. And, as usual, we also got diverted into other topics and about the relevance to today.

As I study and prepare for these sessions, as best as I can, I am discovering what for me has become a unifying thread. "God's way is perfect – do not stray from it." It began with the laws on cleanness. Why, we wondered, were some animals "clean" and others "unclean?" It was not a matter of health. Rabbits are not in anyway unhygienic. For many of the day camel meat was a delicacy but was forbidden to the Israelite. Why? Oxen – clean. Pigs – unclean. Anchovies – clean. Shrimp – unclean. Ultimately we came to an understanding that it was the animals which were typical of the class that were clean. Animals that fit the definition of "normal" for that sphere were clean. Animals that deviated from the norm were unclean. God was giving a concrete theological lesson – Yahweh's plan is perfect, do not deviate from it. In requiring the Israelites to constantly question whether an animal, or an action was clean God is demonstrating that we need to constantly examine our own behavior to see if it deviates from God's perfect plan. In giving some animals, the clean ones, to be eaten and others, the unclean that were forbidden, God was giving a further concrete lesson to the Israelites. Out of all the animals in the world, God has chosen some to be clean – in the same way, out of all the peoples in the world God has chosen the Israelites and made a covenant with them. At each meal the Israelites, in observing the cleanness laws, were reminded of their special election by Yahweh. In the same way saying grace at each meal reminds us not only of God's blessings toward us but also of our election by God in Jesus Christ. Each Communion is a reminder of Christ's sacrifice on our behalf.

The idea that "fitting the normal pattern" is important to God is carried out into the many other laws. Deviation from the "ideal" was not acceptable. Only unblemished animals were allowed for sacrifice. Christ, our unblemished sacrifice, has done away with the system of daily sacrifices. "Life" is the ideal condition and death quite the opposite, hence, being associated with death by touch or even presence made the Israelite "unclean." Chicken – clean and buzzards – unclean is an application of this. Leprosy, disease, etc. as a non-ideal condition is thus unclean.

The laws were not only reminders of Israel's redemption, they were like signs which at every turn inspired meditation on the oneness, purity and completeness of God. Levitical laws gave holiness a physical expression, then and now. Through the sacrifice of Christ we today are so much more privileged than ancient Israel. It is easy for us to take for granted the grace that has been given to us and fail to acknowledge it. The ancient cleanness laws were designed to curb such forgetfulness. Leviticus still speaks to us across the centuries.

NEW STUDY COMING!! By Dr. Mike Roadruck

Wholly the Holy Bible. Coming soon to a church near you! The Holy Bible—its origins and the battles fought to shape it.

Many of you have asked, "Where did we get the Bible?" Well, while it does contain God's inspired word, God did not dictate it verbatim. Humans got involved. Finite human language is often too limited to describe the unlimited nature of an infinite God. Yet, the Bible has been the source of help and comfort for generation upon generations of those same humans. Today we have a generally accepted collection of 66 works by at least 39 authors over a 1500 year period. But it didn't come easily. There were arguments and pitched battles over what should be included in the "canon" of the church. (And, what is a canon doing in church anyway?) This Fall Agnes McKinstry and Christina Roebuck will present a four week study on "How We Got the Bible." The study will be offered in the church lounge following church services beginning September 8th and continuing on the 15, 22, and 29 of the month. The Commons is a loud place to hold a discussion. Eating and drinking are, however, also allowed in the lounge. So, get a beverage and a treat in the Commons and come enjoy them in the lounge to get a treat for your mind as well. Where did we get the Bible? You may be surprised!

2013-2014 HORIZON BIBLE STUDY By Pat Gibson

All are welcome to come to the Alpha Omega Bible Study, "An Abiding Hope" (The Presence of God in Exodus and Deuteronomy) which will meet on the 3rd Monday of each month at 3pm in the lounge. The Bible Study will be starting on September 16th. The books of Exodus and Deuteronomy invite us to remember that the central figure in our loves should be God! In the experiences described in these two books of the Bible, we will be assured of God's abiding presence as individuals and as a community of faith. We will look at a God who redeems even when we don't deserve it and a God who brings liberty and fulfillment to our life!

Please call the church office by Wednesday, September 4, if you are interested in this Bible Study so that Darlene can order a study book for you. The cost for regular print is $8 plus shipping and handling and for large print the cost is $12 plus shipping and handling. Scholarship money is available to cover the book cost. Let Darlene know if monetary assistance is needed. The leadership of each monthly lesson rotates around to different Alpha Omega members, only if the person is comfortable in this role. We all study, discuss, and learn together!

Lamb Ministry

We have lambs available for you to take to minister to people who are in the hospital, lonely, sick, and depressed etc. These lambs have been prayed over by Fairgreen Presbyterian Church. So stop by the Welcome Center and pick one up to touch someone's heart.

We Love Our Shut-Ins

We do not want to ignore our shut-ins or have them think we have forgotten them...so we are listing two of our shut-ins and we are asking everyone to send a card (or two), or even a phone call to them. We will list two names every newsletter with their addresses for your convenience so they will know that we are thinking and praying for them.

BROWNIE BAKE By Linda Hoover

The Deacons and the Hospitality/ Mission Committee are making a joint request for the congregation to bake brownies ..... actually dozens and dozens and dozens of brownies, please! The Deacons will serve brownies as the dessert for the Chicken BBQ on Saturday, Sept. 21. Congregational donations offer the Deacons the blessing of prepared, ready-to-serve desserts.

The Mission / Hospitality Committee has scheduled a third, free Neighborhood Treat Give-away on Saturday, Sept. 28 from 9:00 a.m. until noon. This Mission event will now be renamed Sweet Treat Saturday, and instead of cookies, (the focus of last year's Cookie Love) the treat will be brownies.

The plan is this: LOTS of BROWNIES will fill two different needs.

All brownies not needed for the Chicken BBQ will be frozen until the following Saturday when they will be thawed and packaged for the give-away.

Chicken BBQ

Our Food Pantry is almost bare and if you would like to donate some of the following items to help us replenish it, that would be a blessing.

Items needed: peanut butter, canned soups, canned fruits, cereal, spaghetti noodles, macaroni & cheese, spaghetti'os, canned vegetables, shampoo, toothpaste, toilet paper, Kleenex, bar soap, dish soap and anything else you may want to donate. We also accept monetary gifts. Just bring your items to the church office during the week or on Sunday's.

Come join us on Saturday, September 21, 2013
at Fairgreen Presbyterian Church
